Every nation has its own customs and long-lived traditions.

Each family has its own traditions. So and my family. We celebrate all holidays in a very special way and it keeps our family together in spirit.

I would like to tell you about one of the most favorite holidays in our family, about Christmas.

We celebrate it on the 25th of December. Preparation for Christmas is always pleasant: buying gifts, sending Christmas cards and decorating Christmas tree with small, bright-colored lights. And then Christmas comes. It starts in the morning with the smell of cookies, cakes and chocolate. My mom makes the most tasty cakes and cookies in the world. Next morning after Christmas we are all looking for the sweets which the Father Frost puts into the Christmas stocking. I don't really believe in Father Frost but I believe that Christmas is a very unusual holiday when the wonders happen and all dreams may come true.

My Flat

We have a nice flat in a new block of flats. Our flat is on the fourth floor. It has all modern conveniences: central heating, gas, electricity, cold and hot water, a lift and a chute to carry rubbish down. There are three rooms, a kitchen, a bathroom and a hall in our flat.

The living-room is the largest and most comfortable room in the flat. In the middle of the room we have a square-table with six chairs round it. To the right of the dinner-table there is a wall-unit which has several sections: a sideboard, a wardrobe and some shelves. Between the two large windows there is a little table with a colour TV set on it. Near the TV set there are two cosy armchairs.

The bedroom is smaller than the living-room and not so light as there is only one window in it. In this room there are two beds with a bedside-table between them. An alarm-clock and a small lamp with a pink lamp-shade are on the table. In the left-hand corner there is a dressing-table with a big mirror.. In this room we have a built-in wardrobe with coat-hangers to-hang clothes on. There is a thick carpet on the floor and plain light-brown curtains on the window.

The third room is my study. It is not large but very cosy. There isn't much furniture in it, only the most necessary. It has a writing-table and an armchair before it. In the right-hand corner there is a bookcase full of books, magazines and newspapers. A small table with a radio is standing in the left-hand corner. Near it there is a sofa with some cushions. In my opinion, the study is the best room in our flat.

But the warmest place in our flat is the kitchen, I think — the place where the whole family gathers every evening not only to have supper together, but also to speak and rest. I like the English proverb: "My home is my castle" because my flat is, indeed, my castle.

Answer the questions:

1. Have you a house or a flat?
2. How many rooms are there in your flat?
3. Has your flat all modern conveniences? What are they?

Leisure and entertainment in the family

Our family is very united. We like to spend time together. In the evenings we watch TV, read books and newspapers, listen to music or just talk about the events of the day. Our parents don't always agree with what we say, but they listen to our opinion.

All of us like to spend our weekends in the country. We often go to the village where our grandparents live. They are aged pensioners now, but prefer to live in the country. We are happy when we are together.

As for my parents, they like an active rest. We like staying outdoors, especially in spring and summer. In winter we ski a lot. We get up early in the morning, put on suits for skiing and go to the country where we organize competitions. In summer we go to the seaside and enjoy our holidays. In autumn we often go to the forest to gather mushrooms or berries or just walk there.

Sometimes we like to go to the theatre. In our country there are a lot of theatres: big and small, new and old, famous and not very well known. The Bolshoi Theatre in Moscow is among the most famous theatres in the world. Wonderful operas and ballets are staged in this theatre.

At the theatre, we buy the booked tickets in the ticket office and go to the performance hall to take our seats. I like the interior of the theatre. We watch the opera from the balcony. There are two acts and an intermission, during which we share our expressions and drink coffee in the theatre's bar.

British meals

Alexander already has some ideas about typical British food. The usual meals are breakfast, lunch, tea and dinner. Breakfast is generally a bigger meal than they have on the Continent, though some English people like a “continental” breakfast of rolls and butter and coffee. But the usual English breakfast is porridge or cornflakes with milk or cream and sugar, bacon and eggs, marmalade with buttered toast, and tea or coffee. For a change you can have a boiled egg, cold ham or perhaps fish.

They generally have lunch about one o'clock. The businessman in London usually finds it impossible to come home for lunch, and so he goes to a café or restaurant; but if they can make it home for lunch, they have cold meat (left over probably from yesterday's dinner), potatoes, salad and pickles, with a pudding or fruit to follow. Sometimes we have a mutton chop, or steak and chips, followed by biscuits and cheese, and some people like a glass of light beer with lunch.

Afternoon tea you can hardly call a meal, but it is a sociable sort of thing, as friends often come in then for a chat while they have their cup of tea, cake or biscuits.

In some houses dinner is the biggest meal of the day. They begin with soup, followed by fish, roast chicken, potatoes and vegetables, a sweet, fruit and nuts, coffee. But in great many English homes we make the midday meal the chief one of the day, and in the evening we have simple dinner – an omelete, or sausages, sometimes just bread and cheese, a cup of coffee or tea and fruit.

Eating out

Nowadays, some people like to eat at home and prepare food by themselves, but others prefer to eat out side in restaurants or at food stands. As far as I am concerned, I prefer to eat at home.

Of course there are some advantages to eat out. Firstly, restaurants offer a more comfortable environment to eat and the food there tastes more delicious than home-cooked meals. In addition, eating at restaurants is a good way of getting together with friends. People also do not need to worry about washing dishes and cleaning. For people who are too busy to cook, eating out is certainly an ideal choice.

However, I prefer to cook and eat and home. Family members can prepare their meals and enjoying their food together, which can enhance their relationships. Family members can talk, make jokes and exchange feelings on current affairs. Parents have a chance to communicate with their kids and keep track of what they are thinking and doing Another reason is that eating at home can save money. The same amount of money that you spend on a meal in a restaurant can buy a lot more foods from a supermarket.

I think, eating out side is comfortable and convenient, but eating at home has more benefits. And I prefer to eat at home.

Education in the U. S. A.

Like in England, school education in the U. S. A. consists of two stages: primary education and secondary education.

Primary education begins at the age of six, when children go to an elementary school. They stay at the elementary school for eight years, until the age of 14. The subjects taught at the elementary school include reading, grammar, literature, mathematics, science, social studies (which is a subject that combines history, geography and economics), computer, music, art and physical education.

At the age of 14 American children pass on to secondary education, which they get at high schools. The course of secondary education lasts for four years. High schools are large. As a rule, a high school takes pupils from several elementary schools. A high school offers a wide range of subjects, so that teenagers can choose a course of studies according to their individual inclinations and abilities. They may choose to study the English language and literature, or foreign languages, history, geography and economics, or advanced mathematics, physics or chemistry. They can also learn such subjects as accounting or subjects which will help them later, when they enter the business world.

In some states children stay at elementary schools for six years instead of eight. After that they go to the so-called intermediate, or junior high schools, where they stay for another three or four years, and then pass on to a senior high school to complete their secondary education.

Task 3. Answer the following questions.

1. Which are the two stages of school education in the U. S. A.?
2. At what age do children go to school in the U. S. A.?
3. What do they call schools giving primary education?
4. How long do children stay at the elementary school?
5. What subjects are taught at elementary schools?
6. At what age do American children pass on to secondary education?
7. What is a high school? Is it a school giving you a higher education?
8. How long do pupils stay at high schools?
9. Which schools are larger: elementary schools or high schools?
10. A high school offers a wide range of subjects, doesn't it? Does it mean that a pupil studies all the subjects offered by the high school?
11. How do teenagers choose a course of studies?
12. What subjects are taught at high schools?

13. What is an intermediate school?

B.: Yes, what is it, Mr. Brown?

A.: You say that yours is a secondary school, and I see a lot of little children running about the school yard. They are not older than 7 or 8. They cannot be pupils of a secondary school.

B.: Well, it's easily explained. You see, unlike England and the U. S. A., in our country primary schools are not, as a rule, separated from secondary schools.

A.: So you combine a primary education department and a secondary education department under one roof, don't you?

B.: That's right. In fact, a typical Russian school is actually a secondary school with a primary education department.

A.: M-m, very interesting. Thank you, Mr. Pavlov.

B.: You are welcome.

Education in Russia

There are two stages of school education in Russia: primary education and secondary education.

At the age of 6 or 7 Russian children go to school.

During the first three or four years they get a primary education: they learn to read, write, count, draw. They also have lessons of music and physical training.

Unlike England or the U. S. A., in Russia primary schools are not, as a rule, separated from secondary schools: we have large schools which combine a primary education department and a secondary education department under one roof. In fact, a typical Russian school is actually a secondary school with a primary education department. Only in small country places there may be separate primary schools, on finishing which, the pupils pass on to the nearest larger secondary school.

The course of secondary education is, in its turn, subdivided into two stages: the first stage, which might be called intermediate, and the second one.

The intermediate stage is compulsory and embraces forms from the 5th up to the 9th. During the intermediate stage the pupils get a basic knowledge in the Russian language and literature, a foreign language, mathematics, physics, chemistry, history, geography, biology. They also have lessons of music, art and handicrafts. A computer course is also included in the curriculum.

On completing the intermediate course of studies, at the age of 14, the pupils may either go to vocational or technical schools, which give a professional training, or stay on at the secondary school for another two years. The curriculum of the last two years offers a wide range of subjects, so that teenagers can choose a course of studies, according to their individual inclinations and abilities.
